BRIEF HISTORY OF MIDALE AND DISTRICT

1903—1953

By Peter Hultgren

In the early summer of 1903 a number of settlers arrived in what later became known as Midale and district. These settlers looked at the vast open prairie with courage and optimism. The sky looked just as blue and the sun shone just as brightly as it had over the countries from which they came. The abundance of grass and flowers on the prairie served as an indication that the new settlement had all the potentialities required for mixed farming.

Practically all settlers had filed on a one hundred and sixty acre homestead, a gift from the Canadian Government to men eighteen years of age and over. Under the "Homestead Act" provision had been made that any prospective homesteader could secure a railway car in which to ship his settler's effects at greatly reduced rates. One half of the car would accommodate room for four head of horses and four head of cattle and some feed. The other half of the car would be carefully loaded with lumber, tools, barbed wire and posts for fencing, necessary implements, supply of feed oats, household goods, and a good supply of food stuff. Scarcely nothing could be forgotten.

The man holding the "Bill of Lading" would usually ride in the caboose to be on hand to care for the animals at various stopping points.

On arrival the unloading would take place. The most urgent task would be to provide pasture for the animals. No one would dare to turn the horses loose in the open, in case they would decide to go back to the place they had left. The railway officials were very accommodating and usually left the empty car on the siding to be used as sleeping quarters for the first nights. It required a great deal of skill on the part of the homesteader to even find the location of his homestead. Some settlers found it convenient to figure out how many turns a wagon wheel had to do to make a mile. A piece of cloth would be tied to a spoke. Usually two men would start off together with a team of horses. The driver with compass in hand, would drive in the direction desired. The other man would count the turns of the wheel. When the distance of a mile had been reached, they would stop to find the mound by which each corner of a section had been marked. Here a more conspicuous marking would be placed as a road sign. Then to start off again for another mile, and on and on until the homestead had been found. Thus prairie trails were started in all directions in the district.

Realizing the hardships and inconveniences in a new settlement, the regulations in the "Homestead Act" were made fairly elastic. Young men having parents living on farms in the district could "prove up" their homestead while living with their parents, providing necessary improvements had been made. The "Act" also provided that a homesteader could secure title on the homestead while living on purchased land on a preferred location. This made it possible for a homesteader to stay within the regulations and at the same time carry on business in the closest business center. Three men went into partnership and plans were made to start building a new town. These men were Olaf Sutherland, Andrew Westman and Ole Wedin.

Up to this time, the place was known as the Halbrite and Macoun siding. A name for the place had to be chosen. It was suggested that the name should be in honor of some noted person. One of the planners suggested "Mitchell" in recognition of Dr. R. M. Mitchell of Macoun. Someone else suggested "Oledale" in honor of Mr. Ole Dale who was the first settler to arrive in the district. A third man suggested a compromise by using the first two letters in Mitchell and the last four letters in the second name suggested, which would spell "Midale". This name was accepted by the authorities as being original, and it is still the only such name on the map.

The same men also gave their own partnership a name being the "Midale Mercantile Company." Their business included a gen-

Other activities in 1903 added greatly to the progress of the new town and district. John L. Anderson, who was looked up to as "jack of all trades", starting blacksmithing, mostly sharpening plow shares for farmers busy breaking up land. John T. Lindstead built and operated the first livery barn. Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Hedin had a restaurant and Mr. and Mrs. Matt Erickson had a rooming house. The congenial Mr. Peter Baker was always on hand when an extra man was needed.

In spite of the busy season, a goodly number of the settlers took time off for religious services conducted by the Rev. Olaf Sutherland. On October 25, 1903 the Midale Baptist Church was organized with eighteen chartered members.

The following year, 1904, was also an important year. Dr. Scott moved to Midale and started a medical practice, and his brother served the town and district as dentist. A one-room school was built on the east side of Main Street. The first School Board was appointed on December 1, 1903. Officers of this Board were Ole Wedin, J. T. Linstead and Peter Youngren who acted as chairman.

Two lonely bachelors living southeast and northeast of town were the first to be married. They were Albin Erickson and Alfred Swanson. Mr. Erickson brought his bride from Alexandria, Minnesota, and Mr. Swanson found his "elect" one mile east of Midale.

In 1905 the Norwegian Lutheran Church was founded. The first pastor to serve the church was the Rev. O. B. Saunders. In the same year it was found that the one-room school was too small, and a two-room brick building was erected on its present site. The old school building was purchased by the Weyburn Security Company and became the first bank. The first manager was Charley Johnson. Lars Lindbom built and operated a large livery barn. During the years to follow, Mr. Linbom and Sons were of great service, not only to the town, but to the whole community. The C.P.R. station as it now stands was also built, with Mr. L. A. Saunders as agent.

During 1906 and 1907 several new buildings sprang up. The Wedin brothers, Ole and Andrew, built a larger store adjacent to the former, which was sold to M. A. Moser and was used as a restaurant. The hotel was built by Adolph Lytze and was named in honor of his wife, Frances. Harry E. Koch built and operated a drug store. The building of the Baptist church also dates back to 1907. In recognition of the generous contribution to the "building fund" by non-members as well as members, ministers from other recognized church denominations were welcome to hold services in this church. This building was also used for a large Union Sunday School until such time as other churches were built to accommodate the growing population of town and district.

That same year Midale was incorporated as a village. J. V. Flury served as overseer, and later held the office of Secretary-Treasurer over a period of ten years.

As an indication of a promising grain growing district, Midale already had three elevators. They were, The Farmer's Elevator Co., The Johnson Elevator and the Lake of the Woods elevator. Bert Houghtling was employed as agent for the Farmer's Elevator and

Other business places dating back to these early years were, Flury and Krough Store, Giles Hardware Store, Moser Barber Shop, Peckinpaugh Restaurant, and Butcher Shop, Casper Flury Hardware, Ed. Jensen Store and Flury and Oscar Rederberg Store.

In 1909 the Rural Municipality of Cymri, No. 36 was organized. Olaf Sutherland served as the first reeve and Andrew Westman was the first secretary-treasurer. Up to that time the district had been governed as a Local Improvement District. That year also the first rural telephone line was in operation.

The first Midale band was started in 1910 under the leadership of Joe Murry. About twenty members were enrolled with such familiar names as David Anderson, J. V. Flury, Alvin Marks and Albert Wedin among them. Later the leadership was taken over by William Shippam. The band formed an important part in community life. No fair or celebration was officially opened without first having a selection by the band.

The year 1911 was a year which must not be forgotten. By this time a goodly number of country schools were in operation. The number of children in the Midale School District had increased to such an extent that two rooms had to be added to the Midale school. During the summer the United Church was built. The first pastor serving this church was the Rev. Gamble. The organization of the church known at that time as the Methodist Church, leads back a few years. The board members were J. V. Flury, F. N. Noble and Fred Wright. Charles Marks served at a time as Superintendent and teacher in the Union Sunday School referred to above.

In that year also Dr. Mainprize came to Midale. At the age of twenty-two he had graduated from college with a Medical Doctor's Degree. This young doctor started his medical career in Midale, taking over Dr. Scott's office. He soon captured the hearts and minds of both young and old. Many beautiful maidens looked in amazement at the boyish doctor as he skilfully manoeuvred his shining 1911 Model T Ford coupe. The doctor, however, did not seem to pay too much attention to these maidens as he had spotted a blue-eyed blonde, as yet too young to be married, but he had it all figured out that she was worth waiting for. After a few years Miss Helen Wedin became the "bride of his choice."

The first long distance telephone was operated by Harry Koch in his drug store, but after 1911 both rural and long distance calls were handled at the newly built telephone office. Miss Julia Evans was the first operator, followed by Mrs. Hill, Miss Hazel Draves, Miss Ursula Flury and the present operators, Mrs. Freda Peterson and Mrs. Esther Hanna.

Since the large hall on top of the Wedin Brothers Store had burned down together with the store, it became necessary to issue

Time and space does not permit to render a further yearly account of the growth and activity of town and district over the years. Only a few scattered references will be given here and there.

In 1924 the Saskatchewan Pool Elevator was built. Mr. Russel was the first agent at this elevator. Several other men have been employed of whom the best known are Reuben Berg, and Fred Picker until up to the time the present agent, Mr. Roy Wilkie, took over.

The Midale Co-operative Creamery was built in 1926 and was successfully operated for a number of years.

In 1931 the Village through debenture, purchased its first lighting plant. R. J. Eckel was the first operator. Other operators were Axel Magnuson and Mac Achen. This plant was used until 1945 when the Saskatchewan Power Commission secured the fran-

A large building, owned by Mr. H. Westergaard of Macoun, was donated to the Norwegian Lutheran Church and was moved to Midale in the early part of 1933. This building was remodelled to become a fine church building. Up until just recently, the church was served from Macoun and Estevan. In 1953 progress was made by dividing the parish so as to have a resident pastor in Midale. A fine new parsonage has been built which has been occupied since May 14 by Pastor and Mrs. E. B. R. Haave and family.

The Church of God was organized in 1944, and in the same year both the church building and parsonage were made suitable to fill the needs of this organization. Rev. Arnold Erickson served as its first pastor.

During the years of their existence all the local churches have had a great and lasting influence for good and for the upbuilding of desirable fine characters.

Two rooms were added to the Midale School in 1951 and in 1952 another room had to be arranged for. The present members of the School Board are Arthur Hultgren, Norman Anderson and George Hardy, with Miss Mabel Tisdale as secretary-treasurer.

In considering the history of Midale and District thus far, it might appear as if there have been only good crops and favorable conditions for both farmers and business men throughout the fifty year period. This, however, is not so. Occasionally people talk about the period of depression. This was a mysterious something which no one seemed to be able to understand or satisfactorily explain. To the average man it appeared as if those with capital locked up their money in such a way as to make it almost impossible to get hold of any. Coupled with this, the farmers of this district had either total or partial crop failures year after year. These failures were caused by frost, rust, drought and hordes of grasshoppers. According to Government statistics, the average yield of wheat in the R.M. of Cymri, No. 36 from 1930 to 1940 was only about two bushels per seeded acre. To make things worse, the prices of other agricultural products were kept extremely low. Due to total crop failure in 1937, the price for canner cows at shipping points was fixed by the government at one cent per pound and prices for other grades of cattle, hogs and poultry were held at a comparative value. At one time in the past it is recorded that wheat was sold as low as thirty-two cents, oats and barley at nine cents per bushel and eggs as low as five cents per dozen and so on.

Under such conditions, no matter how hard the farmers worked and how much they tried to save, they were forced to get deeper and deeper into debt. Farm mortgages kept growing until in most cases they far exceeded the value of the farms at that time. Horses grew old and most of the implements were worn out before they were paid for. Such were the farmers' plights, and as a matter of necessity the municipality had to be involved. In an effort to assist the needy farmers with feed, seed and other necessities of life, the municipality was placed in an almost hopeless financial condition. At the lowest ebb, the municipality had an indebtedness of about $400,000.

This deplorable situation in the rural district had its effect on business as customers had very little purchasing power. To make it still worse for the business men, Midale has had its share of destruction caused by fires. In the years 1910 and 1914 and 1939 and 1948 large business establishments were burned to the ground.

Of those who have suffered losses by fires and who are still in business in Midale are M. A. Moser, Stirton and E. Speer and P. S. Archibald. Men like these deserve the highest respect from their fellow citizens. The first mentioned, sometimes referred to as the barber-preacher, has been burned out three times. Since the last fire, Mr. Moser has gathered a large curio-collection of war souvenirs, Indian battle axes, and relics of all sorts telling their silent stories of vanished Indian tribes or stories leading back perhaps to the Stone Age. It is estimated that this Museum-Barber Shop contains about 12,000 items of interest for sightseers to behold.

Two world wars have also taken their heavy toll in lives, manpower and capital. Midale, in comparison with some other places of its size, perhaps was fortunate. However, two promising young men lost their lives as a sacrifice to preserve the freedom of others. A large number of other young men and also three young ladies enlisted for various military services, of whom seventy-six are on the Honor Roll. Three of these were awarded the D.F.C. This is indeed a splendid record.

The local branch of the Canadian Legion was organized in June of 1944. The officers elected at the formation were, P. S. Archibald, president and Albert Manley, secretary-treasurer. It began with eighteen members who had been veterans of both world wars. The membership later grew to forty.

Now as the citizens of Midale and District are looking back over the past fifty years, they have reasons to be thankful and acknowledge their gratitude to God for changed conditions existing compared to those in the "dusty thirties." There is no reason any longer to call this locality "the dried out area." Rain has fallen and the grasshoppers have left the district. Fair to good crops have been harvested and prices for agricultural products have been satisfactory.

The farmers have not been standing idly by and a most amazing recovery has been experienced. Mortgages and other debts have been paid off in less time than expected. Farms have been purchased and in most cases these farms are paid for in full. New implements, cars and trucks are seen most everywhere and modern conveniences are being used in an ever-increasing number of homes. Taxes, as a rule, are no longer being kept in arrears so the municipal debt mentioned in the foregoing has been settled long ago. This was made possible through government cancellation of direct relief, feed and fodder and fifty per cent of 1938 seeding advances.

Instead of debts, the municipality owns and operates a fairly complete line of modern road building equipment. Both council and ratepayers have the satisfaction of having a new up-to-date office building on the old site, the old building having been sold and moved away.

These changed conditions in the rural district would naturally have a favorable effect on business and on urban life in general. This set some people thinking of social improvements such as a hospital for those in need of hospital care and a skating and curling rink for those in need of recreation.

The Midale branch of the Canadian Legion had been negotiating for the purchasing of the Chandler airport building to have it moved to Midale to be used as a Legion hall. As it was considered that this building could be made suitable for the local needs of a hospital, the Legion members not only gave up any claim they might have had, but assisted the hospital committee in securing the building. On recommendation by the Department of Public Health, the formation of a Union Hospital was established under the Saskatchewan Hospital Plan. The Union Hospital District consisted of the Village and the Rural Municipality of Cymri, No. 36. A vote was taken on the by-law for an estimated cost of $20,000. The poll was a record one and one of the notable features of the results was the fact that the village electors gave a one hundred per cent favorable ballot and throughout the entire district the vote was overwhelmingly in favor of the hospital. The members of the Hospital Board were H. L. Egland, Cairns McLeod, Peter Hultgren and secretary-treasurer G. A. H. Molberg. After the illness of Mr. Egland, Mr. Elmer Kramer has been a member of the Board.

Alteration work on the hospital building was done partly by community volunteer help and partly by hired skilled labourers. It meant remodelling the entire interior and everything had to be in accordance with hospital requirements. This was done and up-to-date hospital equipment purchased. The hospital was officially opened on March 7, 1949. The occasion was highlighted by the presence of the Honorable T. C. Douglas, Premier of Saskatchewan, who cut the ribbon and was the guest speaker at a public meeting in the town hall. A large number of congratulators were present bringing greetings from near and far. Some of the people who gathered were not able to get inside the hall but were seated on benches placed on main street, and listened to the program by means of a speaker system. This was a day long to be remembered in Midale and District.

Now, after four years of hospital service, the citizens of the Hospital District can look back over these years with a feeling of satisfaction. The hospital has filled a definite need and it makes one wonder how it was possible to get along without a hospital for so long. The hospital has a fine record in the treatment of the sick, and 309 babies have had their first days of care in this hospital. The financial situation is also in fine shape. The staff has been most efficient. Mrs. Helen Gibney served well as Matron until September, 1951. Since then Mrs. Jack Pollock has ably held the position of Matron at the hospital.

Two men deserve special mention at this time. They are Dr. Wm. Mainprize for his untiring efforts in the care of the sick and for his generous contributions towards the requirements in the hospital. The other man is Mr. H. L. Egland for the interest he showed and for all the work he did for the hospital before the time of his illness.

The people of Midale and District had made history in the erection of a well equipped hospital, but community minded men and women were visualizing as in a dream the grand opening of the Midale Memorial Rink which was freely discussed and planned for by both young and old. A rink committee was appointed to investigate every possibility of creating a building fund large enough to warrant the purchase of a location and material for the rink.

As an example of long-view planning, some twenty-five farmers under the leadership of Dean Webster rented a three-quarter section farm in the spring of 1948 and had the fields seeded in one day. Even the seed was donated. A good crop was harvested and the net proceeds gave the building fund a sizeable start. This, together with cash donations, gave the committee the signal to go ahead. A hangar at the Estevan Airport was purchased and a crew of men under the able leadership of Lawrence Ironside and Charley Scharnatta was organized. The dismantling went on as had been planned. A truck was purchased to haul the building material to Midale. Taking advantage of the exceptionally fine weather in the fall of 1949, the building program was really put into high gear. An experienced rink building carpenter was hired as foreman and a number of men each day donated their labor to the rink. Bud Isely was put in charge of the supplies, earnestly hoping that the material would last until the building was completed. Except for the shingling, the rink was finished in the early part of the winter, but the official opening did not take place until March 15, 1950. An estimated crowd of twelve hundred gathered in the rink to watch and listen to the proceedings. Guest speaker for the occasion was Mr. E. W. Stinson of Regina, director of the Saskatchewan Recreational Movement. He was followed by addresses from representatives of local and neighboring towns and districts. At this time the truck was sold.

The Memorial Rink as it now stands is built for regulation hockey and has three sheets of curling ice, a lunch room, hockey dressing rooms, a large waiting room and an up-to-date heating plant.

This impressive building, with an estimated value of $45,000 all fully paid, is an unquestionable proof of what can be accomplished when people have a vision and are willing to pool part of their resources and work together.

During the last few years a number of new homes have been established in Midale. The new residential district in the north section of town is all built up. Expansion is now being made in other directions. Several house trailers are in use due to an oil boom in the district. Not far from town is a promising producing oil well. Drilling is going on at two other locations.

The district might hold numerous hidden possibilities for the future.

Congratulations Midale on your 50th Anniversary!

In celebrating the fiftieth Jubilee, much could be said about the present fine business establishments in Midale. But the rather modest business men have asked that this be omitted from the history. It is therefore suggested that the congratulatory advertisements appearing in this booklet be read the second time.

One noticeable advancement over the fifty year period is seen in education. In the early years of the settlement only a favored few had a chance to take advanced studies. Now it is quite common. In this respect Midale has a fine record. Over the last sixteen years well over one hundred students have graduated from the Midale high school.

During the years Midale has been fortunate in having an efficient teaching staff both past and present. Paul Barker has ably served this school as principal for sixteen years. Mrs. Tom Nordby has had a chance to take advanced studies. Now it is quite common. In this respect Midale has a fine record. Over the last sixteen years well over one hundred students have graduated from the Midale high school.

This historical sketch draws to a close. The writer wishes to thank all those who so kindly have assisted in gathering material and data to make this history possible.

Now in stepping over the half-century mark, the citizens of Midale and district do so with a feeling of recognition to the pioneers, and also with a silent prayer to their Maker asking for His guidance so that event greater advancement and prosperity may be achieved during the next fifty years.

Fifty years of progress is history. Good luck and fortune to all those who have a part in the next fifty years.
